New Planning Director Named; Land Acquisition Opposed

Warren County commissioners Monday morning hired a new planning director and went on record as opposing the U.S. Forest Service from acquiring an additional 7,500 acres of land on the west bank of Allegheny Reservoir.

The planning director, who replaces Robert Peterson, is William R. Rusin, whose resignation from the U.S. Forest Service is effective March 1, 1968. It is expected the county salary board would meet to set an annual salary of $9,300 with yearly increments for the next three years.

The commissioners in objecting to additional land acquisition by the Forest Service said Monday it was their opinion that the original taking of land on the west bank of the reservoir by the government was necessary but sufficient with the zoning of Glade and Elk townships serving as a buffer to prevent possible hodge-podge of buildings and industries.

Chairman Dr. David K. Rice said the commissioners agreed that this country has been developed by private enterprise and the latter should have an opportunity to continue private enterprise ventures on the vital west bank. Dr. Rice added he feared a "creeping welfare state" and stressed the government presently owns almost one-third of the acreage in the United States.

The commissioners met last Tuesday with six representatives of timber industries in regard to the proposed additional land acquisition. Represented were Larimer-Norton Wood Products, Tidoute; Collins Pine and McMillen Lumber, Warren; Hammermill Paper, Erie and John Stewart, an independent Tree Farm operator.

Those in both the large and small privately owned timber producing businesses in a symposium last year expressed concern for the future stemming from various economic

Harrisburg Meet Planned To Discuss Starbrick Road

The Warren County Commissioners will try Tuesday to set up a meeting in Harrisburg between State Highways Secretary Robert G. Bartlett, representative residents of the Starbrick area, and various county officials. The meeting is to air Starbrick residents' objections to the present design of a new four-lane highway through the area.

The commissioners arrived at this decision in the course of a meeting Monday night at Starbrick fire hall. An alternative plan for the four-lane was presented at the meeting, and it was generally agreed that it seemed safer than present highway department plans. This alternative plan, which calls for keeping the present three-lane as a west-bound road and building a two-lane eastbound road on the present site of the New York Central tracks, is to be suggested to state officials. It was outlined at the meeting by R. M. Dunn, spokesman for the Starbrick residents who oppose the present plan. Among those attending the meeting were the three county commissioners, outgoing county planner Robert Peterson, incoming county planner William Rusin, and county planning commission members David Potter, James Frantz,

WCDA Is Considering Affiliation with C of C

Members of the Warren County Development Association met at the new Sylvania plant last night to tour the latest addition to Warren's leading industrial complex in addition to discussing business matters.

Matters discussed during the business session of the meeting included consideration of matching fund applications, a re-organization structure that would see the WCDA become an affiliate of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce, and a new state law that makes it possible for Warren County to issue tax-free bonds for financing industrial developments through a bond authority.

A committee consisting of Joseph McAmbley (chairman), James Olson, Edna Stone and Milton Peterson was appointed to study the by-laws of the Warren County Chamber of Commerce and determine if becoming an affiliate would be to the benefit of WCDA.

In discussing the matching funds available to the county Joseph McAmbley explained the necessary steps and detailed what the funds could be used for. He explained that this year Warren County was eligible for double last year's allotment from the state.

The possibility that at some time in the future there would be a need for the type of financing tax-free bonding could provide was considered and a committee was appointed to further study the matter and approach the county commissioners to determine if they would authorize the establishment of an industrial authority. This committee would consist of John Hanna, Gene Leseman, and Henry McConnell.

Following the tour of the plant the members of WCDA expressed surprise that an industrial installation could be so beautiful and yet so functional. All agreed that the new plant is a worthy addition to the community.

Firemen's Auxiliary Collecting Clothing for Homeless Family

The North Warren Volunteer Firemen's Auxiliary is collecting clothing for the James Porter family whose home and belongings were destroyed by fire Sunday.

The family of six was forced to flee the home they occupied on Kell rd., just off Dutch Hill rd., about 1 p.m. Sunday when a fire which allegedly started in the basement swept through the house, destroying the contents valued at an estimated $3500 to $4000 according to Douglas Ward, North Warren Volunteer Fire Department. Damage to the house owned by Walter E. Kell, 120 Elm st., Warren, was estimated at $8,000 according to Ward.

Donations for the Porter family may be left at any hour at the North Warren fire hall. Clothing is needed for a girl, 4 (size 4 or 5); girl, 12 (size 12); a boy, 7 (size 7 or 8); a boy 5 (size 5 or 6). Mrs. Porter's dress size is 20 or 20 1/2; coat size 18. Porter's slacks size is 34 waist 32 length; medium size shirts.

Viet Ground Action Dies Down; Allies Ready for Next Blow

SAIGON (AP) — Fighting that stemmed from the first two punches of the Communists' winter-spring offensive was fading Tuesday and allied commanders, trying to anticipate a possible third blow, turned their attention to the encircled U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh.

Enemy gunners kept up a steady shelling of the base in northwestern South Vietnam, a key to allied defenses below the demilitarized zone. B52 bombers hit back at the estimated 20,000 North Vietnamese troops who have massed against the 5,000 Marines blocking their way into the vital upper-tier provinces.

Ground action around Khe Sanh died down after a Marine patrol killed 26 enemy in a battle over the weekend. In Hue to the southeast, U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops, supported by land artillery and Navy guns, inched forward in the rubble of the walled Citadel. Communists still were holding out in the ancient fortress, three weeks after the Reds' first countrywide drive Jan. 30-31.

In Phan Thiet, Viet Cong still held the provincial hospital and a girls' high school they seized when they reinvaded the coastal city Sunday during the early hours of their less powerful second-wave attacks.

The guerrillas were reported dug in for a final stand in Phan

Thiet, the city hardest hit in the second-wave fighting. Against them was a force of U.S. paratroopers and Vietnamese infantrymen supported by armed helicopters, fighter-bombers, artillery and naval gunfire.

The only new mortar assault reported by the U.S. Command was a barrage late Monday on the Tra Vinh airfield.

LBJ Says Future Trips Will Have Little Advance Notice

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, back from his most secret major domestic trip, said Monday much of his traveling in this election year likely will be done without much advance notice.

As Johnson's big jet neared Washington early Monday on the homeward leg of his week-end journey, the President discussed with newsmen the secrecy that had cloaked most of his movements in the preceding 33 hours.

"I think you're going to find most of my trips are going to be without much advance notice," he said.

Newsmen at the White House were told after 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon that they had less than two hours to go to their homes, pack a bag and get to Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland but were told nothing of the nature of the impending trip.

USSR May Catch Up with US In Land-Based ICBMs by '69

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says the Soviet Union may have as many land-based nuclear missiles as the United States by mid-1969.

Sources said Monday that word was passed to Congress in McNamara's annual military posture statement. The point was not included in the version publicly released in late January after heavy censoring.

It was the first time a Cabinet officer has been known to set a timetable for when the Soviets might catch up with the United States in terms of land-launched ICBMs.

McNamara's disclosure of latest intelligence projections—based largely on reconnaissance photography—means Russia is expected to have over 1,000 ICBMs in underground firing silos in about 18 months.

He estimated they had 720 as of last Oct. 1.

The United States has reached its planned peak of 1,054 land-based missiles. But it plans to produce new ones which will carry not one but three warheads capable of striking different targets.

In a statement Monday on the strategic situation, the Defense Department said the Soviets "are unlikely to possess a total of land and sea-based ICBM launchers equal to ours until the latter part of the 1970s, if then."

This is because the United States currently holds a huge lead in submarine-borne missiles—656 to Russia's 30.

Sources say the U.S. advantage in sea-based missiles will swell.

Cut Rates Recommended For Foreign Visitors

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House task force recommended Monday a broad range of cut rate prices for tourist services—including a 50 percent discount on domestic airline fares—to attract foreign visitors to the United States.

The Industry Government Special Task Force on Travel set up by President Johnson in November recommended discounts on transatlantic air fares of 25 percent, a 25 percent discount on domestic rail fares, and 10 percent discounts on charter bus rates on trips involving 400 miles a day. These recommendations are now pending before regulatory agencies. The reduction would apply only to visitors from abroad.

The task force also recommended a substantial increase in the budget for the U.S. Travel Service, a waiver for visas for foreign tourists and businessmen and creation of a National Tourist Office to coordinate the promotion of foreign travel to the United States. This office would start with an annual budget of about $30 million in the next fiscal year.

The task force report is part of an effort by the Johnson administration to reduce the international dollar drain by about $3 billion this year. The balance-of-payments deficit last year was $3.57 billion.

State Budget Hearings Open With Sharp Verbal Exchange

HARRISBURG (AP) — A sharp verbal exchange between a veteran Republican lawmaker and a top-ranking administration official highlighted the opening of Senate hearings on Gov. Shafer's $1.98 billion budget Monday.

Sen. George N. Wade, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, complained that administration red tape had resulted in his being unable to secure certain background information on the budget prior to the hearing.

Wade charged that the governor's budget secretary, Arthur F. Sampson, had ordered all department heads in state government to clear with the Budget Office any information requested by the committee.

"You have no business to withhold this information," Wade told Sampson.

Sampson replied that at the time the information was requested, the governor had not yet presented his budget to the legislature. The presentation was Feb. 7.

Wade produced a letter from the State Planning Board dated Feb. 9 in which the executive director, Irving Hand, wrote that information sought by the senator had to be cleared through the Budget Office.

"I wonder if you are trying to make this administration more unpopular than it already is," Wade declared.

Sampson noted that any information required by the committee would be supplied by the department heads at the hearings.

Sen. Clarence D. Bell, R-Delaware, said, however, the committee could not review the budget intelligently unless the information was available before hand.

Included among the information sought by the committee was an outline for each department showing the increase or decrease in number of employees over the past 10 years. "The solution is, if we don't get the information, we don't make the appropriations," Bell warned. "This is not a rubber stamp committee."

Wade, a member of the Senate since 1941 said he had never seen "a less cooperative department" than the present Budget Office.

Ironically, there were no

Democratic senators present at the hearing when the Republican-controlled committee took out after Sampson.

The committee reviewed the budget requests of the following departments and agencies, all of which asked for increases over current spending:

Agriculture, from $6,283,881 to $6,763,982; Military Affairs, from $4,429,110 to $5,655,229; Historical and Museum Commission, from $2,412,722 to $2,919,038; and the Council of Civil Defense, from $311,971 to $341,538.

American Airlines Awards $800 Million Contract

NEW YORK (AP) — American Airlines announced Monday commercial aviation's biggest single order in an $800-million purchase of a jumbo jetliner designed to carry 252 passengers. American said it had placed a firm order for 25 McDonnell Douglas DC10s costing more than $400 million and has purchased options to buy an additional 25 to bring the total commitment to more than $800 million.

The three engine DC10s, called the Airbus, are designed to fly up to 3,000 miles at a cruising speed of 600 miles per hour. The planes are aimed at hauling large numbers of passengers in heavy air traffic corridors.

In the announcement, American said it has committed an unspecified amount of money it would use if the options for the additional 25 airplanes were not exercised.

"It represents a firm indication of our intentions," said

American President George A. Spater.

McDonnell Douglas thus beats out Lockheed Aircraft Corp. in the hotly competitive battle for the first Airbus orders. Lockheed has pushed hard its Airbus concept, called the L1011, as a trijet.

The order calls for delivery of the first 25 DC10s in late 1971 and the additional 25 during 1973.

Spater said the agreement would become firm when McDonnell Douglas receives a sufficient number of orders to proceed. McDonnell declined to specify what a sufficient number would be.

Spater said, "We anticipate American alone will need 100 planes of this type by 1975." The DC10 has one jet engine slung beneath each wing and the third high in the tail. Passengers would be seated eight abreast with two aisles running the length of the plane. It would carry a three-man crew and about eight stewardesses.

Road

Carl Burchardt, and Ward Sharp.

No representatives of the State Highway Department attended. Objections raised to the present plans included:

- Lack of safety for pedestrians and motorists attempting to cross the four-lane.
- Excessive taking of property for the new road.
- Limited access (Some felt this was an advantage, providing greater safety; others opposed it because of its effects on businesses). The alternative plan would eliminate limited access.

No one spoke in defense of the entire present plan, although Peterson defended its "hugle" intersections and limited-access feature. He noted that it was not up to county officials to approve the actual detailed design of the road, merely to suggest its construction.

One of the chief objections to the present plan is that its median strip, separating the two eastbound from the two westbound lanes, is only four feet wide. No one at the meeting felt this offered adequate protection to pedestrians or motorists attempting to cross the four-lane.

If a meeting in Harrisburg can be arranged, Dunn will assemble a group of Starbuck residents to represent the area. One or more of the county commissioners and of the planning commission members are expected to accompany the Starbuck residents.

Besides the alternative plan discussed, there were two suggestions for improving the present plan: traffic lights and pedestrian over- or under-passes.

It was the sense of the meeting that the former would be impossible to get approval for, besides defeating the purpose of the new highway, and that the latter would be very costly, probably having to be paid for by the township, and leaving unsolved the problem of motor traffic across the four-lane.

County

trends in evidence as land uses and values conform to changing conditions.

In addition to competing with government agencies for what little land is available, lumber industry spokesmen stated that they must also compete with agency funds that have been obtained by outright grants or hidden taxation. Their present holdings, they claim, are constantly threatened with the prospect of rising taxes.

Allegheny National Forest on the other hand, in a 1967 annual report, indicated timber sales in 1966 of 36,713.8 million board feet of selected harvest, valued at $1,247,344.26 and a total payroll of $1,270,860 in 1966 covering 381 year-long and seasonal employees. In addition, according to the statement, payments of 25 per cent of total revenues received by Allegheny National Forest of $947,475.39 returned to the counties, throwing an additional $236,868.85 into the economy of Warren, Forest, Elk and McKean.

The Forest Service advised the commissioners the increased boundaries were needed to add more recreation sites.

The county commissioners, however, said Monday that many of the roads to recreation sites owned or planned by the government would have to be maintained by the township affected at a cost to the taxpayers. The 25 per cent of Forest Service revenues returned to townships (25 per cent on timber sales) is usually directed to the various school districts.

According to the commissioners since the county now has proper zoning they see no reason for more government acquisition. Elk and Glade are zoned recreational-conservation one of the most restricted in the zoning ordinance.

In other business the commissioners agreed to repair the court house clock at a cost of $830. The timepiece, erected in 1876, with very little done in line of repair for a number of years, will be illuminated and visible at night, the motor will be replaced and movement and gears overhauled. The contract will go to Roger's Clock Co. of Harrisburg.

Bids were opened for new drapes for the large court room but action on awarding was postponed until 10 a.m. Wednesday. Waxman Furniture Co. of Warren entered a bid of $2,944 while Wellman Bros., Jamestown, N.Y. bid $2,725.40.

With Monday, March 4, the deadline for the current voters registration period, the commissioners remind that the registration office will be open Friday, March 1 from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; Saturday, March 2, 9 a.m. until noon and Monday, March 4 9 a.m. until 9 p.m.

Daughter Born

It was a daughter, not a son born to Mr. and Mrs. William Skinner, R.D., Pittsfield, at WCA Hospital, on Sunday, February 18. An error was made in announcing the birth of a boy on February 17, according to the father.

The family is living in Russell and all three children are attending Russell Elementary School.

Mascot Dies

For many years he was the mascot of Warren's famous Pennsylvania Singing Boys and a familiar figure in and around the Warren area.

After moving to Orlando, Florida with his master, Byron Swanson, choir director, he was struck by a car and killed.

"Terry," Swanson's pet catbird terrier, had many friends here and his owner asked that the sad news be told.

Up until 1814, congressmen were paid only $6 a day.

212 MARKET STREET WARREN

Two Streets Deleted From Paving List

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — A strong protest from the residents of Charlotte and Niagara sts. Monday night resulted in the deletion of the two streets from this year's forced paving list. The city council did agree Monday night to pave Falconer st. from Curtis to Tiffany ave.

Arnold Johnson of 109 Niagara st., representing the residents of Niagara and Charlotte sts., spoke against paving. Johnson said the $14 per $1000 tax increase this year will produce financial hardships for many people.

Following the public hearing, the city council held its regular meeting and voted for the motion of fifth ward councilman Lucy Alpaugh to delete the sections of Niagara and Charlotte sts. involved. Second ward councilman John Champion was the only dissenting voter.

The only other resolution to bring any dissent to the rank of the all-GOP council was on calling for a $1,000 pay hike for Dr. Irwin W. Oppenheim, Oppenheim, the city's pathologist at Jamestown Municipal Laboratory, is now scheduled to receive an annual salary $32,500.

Councilman Warren Erickson objected to the increase, claiming the other departments had done so and said that "perhaps it's time for Dr. Oppenheim to pull in his belt a little."

The vote on granting the pay raise was approved 7 to 5 with councilmen Donald Dahlgren, J. Raymond Peterson, Marjorie Trappani, Fred Anderson, Council president and Erickson all voting against the increase.

Most of the other resolutions were of a routine nature, including one to subsidize Jamestown Ambulance service in the amount of $15,000 and another authorizing $900 per month to be spent on a Tionesta, Pa. firm for janitorial service in the city hall.

New Planning Director Has Had Colorful Career

By FRANKLIN R. HOFF
William R. Rusin has accepted appointment as planning director for the Warren County Planning Commission, effective March 4.

Rusin joined the staff of Allegheny National Forest at Sheffield Ranger District in October, 1966, following an interruption of two and one-half years in Europe, serving with the 3rd Engineers Battalion, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

During two years of his tour in Europe with the Army Engineers, Rusin attended the Norwegian School of Infantry, in winter warfare. That winter and again the following winter, he was a skiing instructor for other NATO troops. The second year he also participated in NATO exercises above the Arctic Circle as an Engineer liaison officer.

A native of Windber, Penna., Rusin was graduated with a B.S. degree in forest management from the University of Montana. During summer vacations he worked with the U.S. Forest Service in the west.

In college he was in R.O.T.C. and was commissioned in U.S. Corps of Engineers as a 2nd Lieutenant.

During his stay in Germany two ski-lifts in the Bavarian Alps were built by his platoon, which served both the local communities and American military. It was a free facility and helped create good German-American relations.

Since he has been with the Allegheny National Forest, Bill Rusin has been active in many undertakings. He was one of the founders of the new Forest Industries Historical Museum of Sheffield, and was unanimously elected curator.

He is post advisor for the experimental Forest Specialty Explorer Post, sponsored by Allegheny National Forest.

He was active in the highly successful first Sheffield Johnny Appleseed Fall Festival in October, 1967, and served as exhibit chairman.

Before leaving for his tour in Europe with the U.S. Army Engineers, Bill Rusin received national notice in Look Magazine and other journals and newspapers for a project he originated and spearheaded in his home town of Windber. A line in the Look about the need for bedsheets for hospitals in South Vietnam prompted his campaign in Windber. Three thousand bedsheets were collected and sent to South Vietnam.

While attending the University of Montana, Rusin participated in many campus activities. He was vice president of the Forestry Club, a member of the R.O.T.C. drill team, the university's gymnastic club, Montana Forum, Ski Club, and a member of Missoula Ski Patrol, affiliated with National Ski Patrol.

He was a member of Silent Sentinel, a senior men's honorary society at the university of the "Druids," honorary forestry fraternity.

"I'm deeply interested in recreation and community planning," Rusin declared in a TMO interview. He comes to the post as planning director for Warren County after a career in the U.S. Forest Service which has been emphasizing its multiple-use program, planning of recreation development over recent years.

Governors Plan Series Of Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican governors announced Monday a series of hearings aimed at shaping moderate planks for the party's 1968 platform—and they skirted conservative strongholds and most big cities in picking the sites.

Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island, who heads the progressive-dominated Republican Governors Association, announced hearings in late April and early May at Seattle, Wash., Albuquerque, N.M., and Little Rock, Ark. He said a fourth hearing will be in a still undesignated Midwestern state with a windup here.

Chafee told a news conference that the governors are aiming at "a bold and imaginative national platform that will have broad appeal to all voters."

The Rhode Island governor said the hearings will seek information on "the problem of our cities, the relationship of the races, the blight of poverty, the problems of housing and transportation, health and pollution, crime and riots, and all others."

He said he will head a team composed of Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania, John A. Love of Colorado and Tim Babcock of Montana.

Chafee was unclear about how much information he felt the traveling governors could gain in three states which have had no recent riots and in which the largest city is Seattle, with a population in 1960 of 557,000.

Chafee ruled out California, where conservative Gov. Ronald Reagan presides over the party machinery, as a site for any hearing. He discounted the possibility that the Midwestern session will be held in Ohio, where conservative Gov. James A. Rhodes runs the show.

He said the traveling governors won't go to Chicago because they are staying out of states with Democratic governors. He made no mention of a possible hearing in New York.

Chafee conceded the governors have made no progress in trying to get Shafer named as co-chairman of the platform committee at the August Convention in Miami Beach, Fla. But he said they are not giving up in their effort to have Shafer share the chairmanship with Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

The progressive governors find Dirksen entirely too conservative for their liking on domestic issues. And some of them have complained that in his support of President Johnson's basic objectives in Vietnam, the Illinois senator has narrowed the opportunity of the Republicans to offer an alternative.

J. Maurice Mahan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Mahan, R.D.I.A. Russell, a graduate student at Bucknell University presented a paper on "The Evaluation of the Continuous Progress Concept of Instruction With University Students" at the American Educational Research Association's National Convention, held in Chicago, Feb. 7 through Feb. 10. The paper presented by Mahan, a 1962 graduate of Eisenhower High School and a 1966 graduate of Grove City College was co-authored by J. William Moore and C. Allan Ritts. Mahan is presently working toward his masters degree in Educational Research.

Pennsylvania Happenings

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Can a computer help police beat the criminal to the scene of the crime?

A University of Pennsylvania criminologist says he thinks it's possible. "If everything works out perfectly" and so do the cops.

Dr. Marvin Wolfgang, supported by a $78,000 grant from the U.S. Justice Department, has programmed a computer that he hopes will tell police—before it happens, naturally—when and where to expect crime.

The new "rookie" joined the Philadelphia Police Department a month ago for a 14-week test, replacing an older and slower computer that mainly kept crime statistics, analyzed traffic accidents, and handled bills, payrolls and other bookkeeping chores.

"It's very experimental," says Joe N. Bloom, director of the Systems Science Division of the Franklin Institute who worked with Wolfgang on the project.

"And we still have to check a lot of factors," insists Wolfgang, before it can really forecast crime locations with some accuracy.

Police Capt. James Herron, who will be in charge of the computer, doesn't plan to jump to fast conclusions.

"We won't start sending policemen out running around on the computer's information until we know whether or not it is right," says Herron.

Warren Rotary Club Inducts Three New Members Monday

Dan Fraumelter, John Costi and James Cable were inducted as new members of Warren Rotary Club by William Walker, in a short form pending a formal ceremony later at Monday's meeting.

Walker outlined the history of Rotary from its beginning in Chicago in 1905 when founded by Paul P. Harris an attorney. Today there are 13,052 Rotary Clubs and 624,000 Rotarians in 137 countries.

Speaker of the day, Bob Gustafson of the Warren National Bank discussed the many services provided today by banks. He reviewed the modern in-service training programs conducted by banking institutions.

Gustafson has served in Warren and in the Sheffield branch of the Warren National Bank. It was during his management that the new Sheffield Branch building was constructed.

Warren Area High School Rotary guests were Jim Seeley, and Mat Voigt.

Another guest was Earl Gray. Singing was led by Dr. David Rice, with Art Lydell at the piano.

A report was made by Bob Gustafson on sales to date of tickets for the annual St. Patrick's day community dinner at the Warren High School cafeteria.

Fire Guts Lander Home

LANDER — High winds and flames combined to completely gut the two-story frame home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Wilcox Saturday.

The home is located about a mile and a half north of Eisenhower High School on Fairbanks road.

The fire was discovered by Frieda Wilcox, a daughter who woke to find her bedroom in flames. Miss Wilcox, who works nights, was forced to jump to safety through a window. She was reported alright Monday by William Schumann, Lander fire chief.

Firemen from Russell, Lander, North Warren and Sugar Grove responded shortly before noon Saturday to battle the blaze. A nearby barn was saved, firemen reported.

Mr. Wilcox was out in a field and his wife away when the fire occurred. A range, washer and refrigerator were removed from the burning structure but most of the other contents were burned or damaged. The Wilcox family, now residing temporarily with George Wilcox, lost most of their clothing.

The Akeley Grange has started a fund to aid the family with containers placed at the Hale Store in Akeley and Benson Store in Russell.

The Russell Fire Auxiliary, neighbors and friends served coffee to the volunteer firemen at the scene.

Church's Political Involvement Causes Rift in Hierarchy

ROME (AP) — With general elections three months off, the Roman Catholic Church's involvement in politics is causing a division among the Italian hierarchy.

The Vatican has told Italian Catholics that it is their duty to remain united once again behind the Christian Democrats, the country's largest party.

Some Catholic intellectuals and diocesan bishops are agitating for a complete withdrawal by the Church from politics. They want an end to any exhortations to the laity on how to vote.

The dispute is expected to come up in a general assembly of Italian bishops which opened Monday in Rome. Its theme is the layman.

The national elections—expected in late May or early June—will be the fifth for Italy's postwar republic and the first since the end of the 1962-65 Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Both the experience of the past elections and the council have a bearing on the current controversy.

The Communist party has gained ground steadily since the war. It is the biggest Communist party in the West and the second largest party in Italy. It polled 7.7 million votes in the last elections five years ago.

In the face of the "Red threat," Italy's bishops always maintained a compact front, telling parishioners to vote for the Catholic party.

But with the late Pope John XXIII and the Vatican Council came a new mood of moderation in Catholic-Communist polemics.

The council stressed that a layman's political actions were basically a matter of his own "conscience."

Additionally, the center-left government coalition of Premier Aldo Moro's Christian Democrats and the Socialists—though clumsy and prone to crisis—appears to have effectively shut the doors of power to the Communists.

Last month the Italian bishops' conference confronted the issue of elections once again.

For the first time an apparently strong faction of prelates called for less direct influence by the Church on voters. The final document was fashioned from a compromise. It upheld the laymen's political affiliation as a matter of his "profound personal conviction." But it counseled the faithful to vote with unity yet another time.

Some Catholic publications saw the document as a first cautious step toward a more liberal stand. But last week a group of Catholic professors and writers condemned it as "unwarranted and heavy interference in the political choices of Italians."

Hopping said it was too early to tell if the teachers would be successful in closing the schools.

The teachers' spokesmen here said another 13,000 would quit by Tuesday.

All classes were canceled in 22 counties with combined enrollment of 556,155. The state's total public school enrollment is 1,300,000.

Four other counties closed part of their schools Monday for lack of teachers. Some that were open Monday announced plans to close Tuesday, a few for the whole week.

Many of the schools that remained open operated as baby-sitting facilities with movie programs and singalongs.

At one elementary school in Daytona Beach, sixth grade girls were assigned to care for first and second graders.

In Tampa's Chamberlain High School, when principal Donald Yoho quit his job, police were called in to stop students tossing cherry bomb firecrackers, roaming the corridors and clustering in schoolyards.

The teachers, acting through their professional organization, the Florida Education Association, began the walkout after rejecting an insufficient last Friday a legislative program for increasing financial support to public schools.

There was no picketing as most of the teachers who resigned joined in 21 mass meetings around the state.

The teachers say their resignations were legal and not in conflict with Florida's law barring strikes by public employees, but an aide to Gov. Claude Kirk said the teachers were on strike.

Dr. Phil Constans, executive secretary for the FEA and chief spokesman for the teachers, said Monday 35,000 had stayed away from their classrooms and would not return until the Legislature passes a bill acceptable to the teachers—one that would give $267 million additional money to schools not including construction. The teachers said

Only 11 Per Cent Give Blood

It was learned from the Red Cross Monday, that approximately 11 per cent of eligible Warren County people donate blood. Why is it that some are in that generous group and not others? What makes some of us go to the Red Cross Bloodmobile and not our neighbor?

A variety of motives activate donors. There is the sense of patriotism and community spirit. There is the desire to have a donation on record to protect members of one's own family. Some are donors out of gratitude for the life-saving donation of a stranger. Others go because they want to help meet the goals set by their clubs or unions or offices. These are all valid reasons.

Blood donations are needed to help Warren County catch up to the scheduled quota for the current year. More of the able and generous among us must help. Housewives, factory workers, professional people—all of us can join together and give a pint of blood to make sure this lifeline is in ample supply to meet all of our needs. Your life without blood to meet emergencies is something to think about.

The Red Cross reminds us that the Bloodmobile will be in Warren Wednesday at 404 Market street, between 11:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

The Viet Cong Losses

WASHINGTON — The known price paid by the Viet Cong for their attacks on the cities continues to mount in a gruesome and almost awe-inspiring manner.

On the military side, the list already comprises at least one North Vietnamese general officer; at least two regimental commanders, and half a dozen battalion commanders with all their headquarters staffs, with at least one more regimental commander and two or three battalion commanders in the trap at Hue. In addition, the probable ribly wrong is the known phase's conspicuous failure to develop. After the "general uprising" in the cities, big units not used in the actual attack on the cities were supposed to "descend from the hills to support the general uprising." This was the common enemy formula, and the preparations to act on the formula caused the American predictions of a "second round."

There has been no widespread second round, nor is one considered likely any longer. There may be one or two local offensive efforts, particularly in the most northerly province, Quang Tri. But that possibility is something very different from the original enemy plan.

It must be emphasized that all this does not mean that everything on our side is just jimmied in South Vietnam. In any way, one side can quite easily be disastrously defeated in a battle of a whole campaign, while simultaneously inflicting very heavy losses on the other side. That has certainly happened, too; and much still depends on how the South Vietnamese government deals with all the destruction and disruption.

Yet what has happened to the enemy deserves stressing, not just because it has been so widely understood, but also for a more profound reason. Gen. Westmoreland has always very frankly said that he was fighting a "war of attrition." The premises of all his planning have now been upset by the other side's going for broke. But his planning premises have plainly been upset for a most encouraging reason — because the Hanoi leaders concluded they could not stand unending attrition.

Here, again, however, strong emphasis is needed for the fact that this going for broke by the enemy is exceedingly dangerous as well as exceedingly encouraging. The attack on the cities was on a balance a disaster, but its sequel in the countryside is yet to be seen. So is the outcome at Khe Sanh and the demilitarized zone, concerning which one must pray.

Nonetheless, the defeat-at-any-price people in this country are howling about American failure, when the main failure to date has been on the other side.

Conversational Counselling And Compost

By Bernie Wingert, County Agent

The Inter-Services Club Olympics are over for another year, and the Rotary Swim Team members showed extreme signs of old age, too much fat, and weak muscles. Training and discipline were sadly lacking and I believe a new approach must be considered prior to next year's contest. Possibly the swimming event should be changed to "who can count the greatest number of fly specks on the ceiling while floating on an air mattress."

Enough for Rotary and the Olympics except I should by rights congratulate the Kiwanis Club for winning a second year. May it stop there, however!

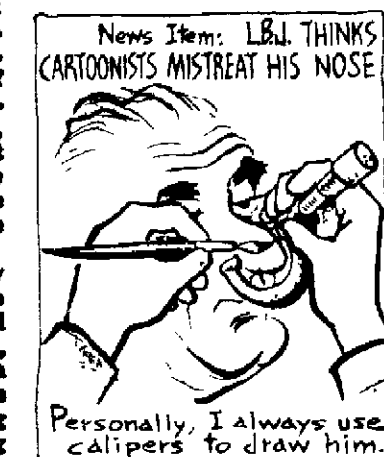

The other day I overheard our office secretary, Mrs. Jones, say something to the effect that she had never known that before, and I said "What had you never known before?" She replied "What makes the white stuff on the surface of the soil in a potted house plant?" She knew the answer you see because she had just finished reading all about the white stuff, and I thought I may as well write about it because if she didn't know there might be other people in the same trouble.

Here's the discussion—A whitish or greyish buildup on the soil surface or on the pot of a house plant is a good indication that you have salt problems. The salts are ions of potassium, calcium, ammonium, nitrates, sulphates, and chlorides that are present in the soil. These ions come from the fertilizer or from the water you use when giving the plants a drink.

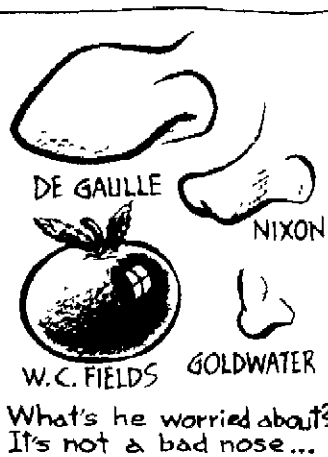

When you give the plants only a little water at a time there is no passage of the water all the way down through the pot, and the salt builds up. Over a long period of time your plants turn yellow and sickly looking and you get the white covering on the surface of the soil. The way to solve this problem is to give the plants a heavy watering occasionally. Set the plants in the sink and water until it runs entirely through the pot. This will wash out the salts and they can't be taken up again by the plant. The key to success is a thorough FLUSHING of the soil, not just another soaking, and of course remember to discard the used water.

Since I'm passing out little helpful household hints, maybe you would like to know this one about eggs. If you store them in the refrigerator big end up you'll keep the yolks centered. They should be kept in the paper or cardboard carton to prevent moisture evaporation and this also prevents absorption of refrigerator odors. Just heard this the other day from a poultry specialist at Penn State and thought it rather interesting. The eggs at our house are usually put in the handy recesses provided for them in the refrigerator door. Here they're losing moisture and taking up odors for years, and I never even knew it.

Personally, I always use calipers to draw him.

What's he worried about? It's not a bad nose...

Maybe he'd like us to DE-exaggerate it.

So Where's Charlie?

WASHINGTON — My friend Kobar doesn't seem to identify too much with what is going on in the cities of South Vietnam these days; so my friend Schultz had to explain it to him.

"Suppose," said Schultz, "you came home one night and found the police surrounding your house, and you said to the chief:

"Hey, what are you shooting in my house for?"

"Don't worry, Sir, Charlie's in there, but we'll get him out."

"That's fine, but do you have to shoot at every window to do it?"

"It's the only way. If we don't rout out Charlie, there will never be any peace in this neighborhood."

"That's just great, but in the meantime, would you stop using that flame-thrower on my house?"

"Charlie's dug in and we have to use everything we've got. It's for your benefit, Sir. The sooner we get him out of there, the better it will be for everybody."

"I'm sympathetic with your problem, and I'd like to get Charlie out, too, but where am I going to live if you keep firing mortars into the roof?"

"Good heavens, man, don't be unreasonable. There's more at stake than your house. If we don't get Charlie out of there, we'll lose the respect of everybody in this city."

"Why did you just blow off my chimney?"

"We thought he might be up there. Look, you can always get a new chimney."

"Sure, but what am I going to do for a new garage, since you just blasted mine away?"

"You can't fight crime and lawlessness without doing SOME damage. Now, be a good guy, and just stand back so we can move this artillery piece up here."

"Now wait a minute, you're going too far. I forbid you to use artillery against my house."

"You are in no position to forbid us to use anything, Charlie has to pay for his crimes."

"That's all right with me, but who's going to pay for my house?"

"I'm sure somebody will take care of it. Besides, that's not our department."

"I don't want to be a bore about this, and I know I can't see the big picture, but that happens to be my dwelling and I worked 25 years to pay for it. By the way, you know you just wrecked my kitchen, don't you?"

"Sorry about that. I guess he must be in the bedroom."

"What are you doing with that tank?"

"We can hit the second floor better with a tank."

"I'll bet you can. Let me ask you a question: suppose he's not in the bedroom?"

"Then we'll have to knock out your living room."

"It figures. I guess one last appeal to spare my house would fall on deaf ears, wouldn't it?"

"WHAT DID YOU SAY? I CAN'T HEAR YOU BECAUSE OF THE DIVE BOMBERS."

"ARE YOU GOING TO DIVE BOMB MY HOUSE?"

"IT SEEMS TO BE THE ONLY WAY. LISTEN, THIS HURTS US MORE THAN IT HURTS YOU."

"There they go. Holy smoke, the whole house is falling down! The whole house! My house is gone!"

"There don't seem to be any bodies in the rubble. I wonder if Charlie's in the next house?"

JACK ANDERSON

Soldiers Behind the Sandbags

(Editor's Note: Jack Anderson today reports from the 38th parallel between North and South Korea.)

ALONG THE 38TH PARALLEL — America's most forlorn and forgotten soldiers crouch at night behind sandbags in the lonely outposts along the demilitarized zone, waiting for a silent, elusive enemy to strike.

A long history of machinegun and grenade attacks began on Nov. 2, 1966, the very day President Johnson ended a triumphant visit to Seoul. On that day, the North Koreans bushwacked an American patrol and killed six soldiers. They have been sniping and marauding ever since.

In the months that have followed, hit-and-run North Korean patrols have killed 24 GIs and wounded 78. The figures will be even higher by the time this report is printed. For hardly a night goes by that the eerie darkness of the 38th parallel isn't shattered by the sudden crash and flash of a firefight.

Yet the GIs are forbidden to strike back at the enemy outposts across the DMZ 4,000 yards away. Their orders are to watch and wait in the severe, Arctic-like cold for "Joe" to hit first.

Joe is the name they have given the North Korean enemy and, after dark, ambush patrols crawl out of the bunkers, belly through the ice-crusted brush and lie on the frozen ground, numb fingers on the triggers, hoping to intercept "Joe."

For this bleak, bitter duty, the soldiers of the second (Indianhead) division not only collect no combat pay and receive no combat ribbons, they also must make out with the left-overs from Vietnam.

I dropped in on these boys in their bunkers on a savagely cold night, moving from outpost to outpost in a blacked-out jeep. Ahead of us moved an escort jeep, carrying three huddled, helmeted figures with rifles at the alert.

In cramped, dingy rooms behind or below the observation posts, around hot charcoal burners, the GIs exercised their constitutional American right to gripe a little. I'll omit the names—these guys have enough grief without getting called on the carpet for talking out-of-turn to the Drew Pearson column.

"This is the end of the supply line," grumped one sergeant. "We get what nobody else wants."

He spoke of shortages of ammunition, fuel and spare parts.

"Why don't you find out how many vehicles are deadheaded?" suggested another. He referred to the jeeps, trucks and personnel carriers that are laid up for lack of spare parts.

"The carburetors don't work," said a tall, thin youth with a moustache too old for his face. "The vehicles we've been getting all seem to have bum carburetors."

"I don't think," chimed in another, "There's a tire patch in the whole Second Division." The only way they could fix a flat, he said, was to take the tire to a Korean-operated, commercial garage. On the way to the front, I had noticed a couple of makeshift civilian Quonset huts, advertising: "We fix flats."

"I tried to start up a tank," said a sergeant. "No fuel."

Another found the emergency brake missing from a new jeep. Others had heard about vehicles arriving without vital parts.

Several griped about the rationing of fuel oil in their barracks. They would come down, after four or five days on the demarcation line, to cold barracks.

"The guys in the rear don't suffer none from the cold," blithered a GI with four days' stubble on his chin. "After they take what they need, there ain't enough left for us guys."

The soldiers in the bunkers and trenches also hadn't received any of the M-16 rifles now used in Vietnam, but they seemed satisfied with their M-14s.

"The M-14 is heavier and fires a bigger slug," explained a corporal, fingering his rifle affectionately.

There had also been ammunition and helicopter shortages, they said, but new shipments had now arrived.

I took up their complaints with Gen. Charles Bonesteel, the United Nations commander in Korea. He acknowledged there had been shortages and promised to investigate the specific complaints.

My own investigation confirmed that Vietnam priorities and Secretary of Defense McNamara's economies had left our 50,000 troops in Korea critically short of the ammunition, helicopters, spare parts and other equipment they would need in case of an attack from the North. Furthermore, the supplies that reach this remote area, as the GIs had complained, are often deficient.

In a few instances, individual officers had rationed fuel oil for the barracks; but they have now been informed this is carrying economy too far. The shortages have not deprived the GIs of the essentials they need. But in case of an emergency the Eighth Army in Korea would be caught short.

The fact is inescapable, however, that the American boys who endure cold and risk death every night in the harsh mountains facing North Korea have been neglected by their government. The brass hats in their Pentagon easy chairs might give a thought to providing these soldiers with the combat pay, supplies and recognition they deserve.

SYLVIA PORTER

Save On Taxes—VI

(In collaboration with the Research Institute of America) If you travel on business—as an executive, salesman, supervisor, auditor, etc.—there were two significant developments last year which should affect your expense deductions on your '67 return as well as your '68 tax planning.

First, a court decision underlined the importance of keeping a diary to record your transportation, meals, lodgings, and other travel expenses you want to deduct. Under the Treasury's own rules, you have to get and keep supporting documents ONLY for your lodgings (hotel or motel bill) and any other separate expenditures of $25 or more (except certain transportation charges.) Since most other travel expenditures amount to less than $25 each, you don't have to be ready to back them up with ACTUAL BILLS for each expenditure. But the rules require you to have some proof of the outlays and the best way to furnish this is through a daily diary showing where, when and how much you spent for what on your trips.

If you keep this diary currently, a district court ruled in '67 that your under $25 deductions as shown by the diary are virtually disallowance proof. To throw out or cut down your deductions, the Treasury agent would have to show that you kept the diary improperly, that it was preposterous on the face, or had some other basic flaw. And once the court upholds the diary, the Treasury's own rules make it unnecessary for you to submit other proof.

Before the court was the case of Mr. Culwell, a long distance truck driver who kept a diary in which he recorded within 15 minutes after the event, the cost, date, time and place of each meal he bought on the trip. The diary put his meal costs at an average of $11 a day. The Treasury cut this to $8 a day apparently because it concluded he couldn't have spent more than that. But the clear and contemporaneous kept diary satisfied the Treasury's own requirements for supporting his $11 a day deductions, said the court. Culwell, though, slipped up on his tips. He merely estimated them and the court therefore disallowed them entirely. So in your diary for 1968, don't be sloppy about tips. List them for each meal.

In 1967, the Supreme Court disagreed with various lower courts and agreed that the Treasury was right in allowing deductions for meals on business trips only if the traveler is away from home at least overnight or long enough to require either rest or sleep on the trip. For instance, suppose you go from New York to Washington, D.C. on business. You arrive in the morning, spend $10 on meals and drink while there, fly home on a night plane. You can't deduct the $10 because you weren't away from home overnight under the Treasury rule which the Supreme Court approved. But if instead you stay overnight in Washington and take an early flight home the next day, you can deduct both your meal costs and lodgings for the night. This could become an incentive for staying overnight on what otherwise might be one-day trips.

One of the travel questions which the Supreme Court skirted in a '67 case was: when is a person "away from home" if he lives away from his residence? Since travel expenses such as meals and lodging are deductible only when the business traveler is "away from home," this question causes constant litigation. A strictly temporary job location away from his family generally permits a deduction for the work. The lower courts also recently have been more liberal than the Treasury by considering an employee to be away from home when it is not feasible for him to move his family to his job location.

But the Supreme Court refused to clarify or verify this and came down in 1967 with a limited decision on a military case which left the "away from home" rule unsettled for civilians. Until it's settled, you might want to rely on the more liberal court interpretation that you are away from home when it isn't feasible to move your family to your location. However, you then may be in for a Treasury fight.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I live near an elementary school. We have always taken pride in our lawn and garden. The grass is like a velvet carpet and the flowers are so beautiful people come from other parts of the city just to look.

We are not mean people, Ann, and we do love children, but it is maddening the way some of the elementary school youngsters run across our lawn and trample on the flowers.

Last week I telephoned the school and asked to speak to the principal. I was told on two occasions that the principal was out of the office but would return my call. The call was not returned.

On the third try I heard the principal's secretary say, "This nut has called twice before and I managed to get rid of her but you'd better take the call this time because she's the type who won't give up."

When the principal got on the phone he was very courteous and promised to speak to the students about trespassing on our property.

My question is this: Why is a person who calls to ask for the school's cooperation considered a "nut"? Was I crazy to make this request? Thank you for your answer.—FT. WORTH

Dear Ft. Worth: A person who telephones to complain about anything is immediately on the spot because most folks don't like criticism. For this reason, the complainant fares better if he doesn't come on too strong with his complaint, particularly to an intermediary.

The secretary was not only rude but unbelievably stupid. I wouldn't want that knucklehead in my office!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A relative of mine is doing something which I feel goes beyond "foolish." It is, in my judgment, harmful to her child. This is the story:

Melanie is a middle-aged divorcee who has a sweet little daughter. Melanie's natural hair color is dark brown but apparently she didn't think it was flashy enough to get a fourth husband, so last year she dyed her hair platinum blonde. In order to make herself appear more authentic she dyed her young daughter's hair the same color. By the way, Melanie does the dye jobs herself and they look it.

The little girl is now five years of age and her hair is getting very thin on top. I'm afraid the child will be bald by the time she is eight if her mother doesn't stop this nonsense.

Melanie is my niece. What can I do?—COMMITTEE OF ONE TO SAVE A CHILD

Dear Committee: It is best that this subject be broached by someone of authority, outside the family. Ask the child's teacher to talk to the mother. There's a good chance that the teacher has also noticed the little girl's hair is falling out. A mother who would exploit her child in such a way is utterly brainless.

"CHOOSING HOME-FURNISHINGS"

CHOOSING A CHAIR means more than selecting the right design, styling and color to live in harmony with your other furnishings.

Even after you have decided what size chair you need for a particular room and place, there are still many unanswered questions. There is the matter of the size of the people who will normally be sitting in it, for instance. . . . a very practical question.

What this means is that a short-legged person will tend to be uncomfortable in a chair that is too deep for him, or with arms too high. Conversely, a tall person will find a very low-backed chair uncomfortable.

Another tip: don't be put off by a chair that seems a shade too firm to you at first sitting. In fact, a chair can be too soft. Comfort comes more from proper support (the result of proper design and construction) than from softness alone, in a chair just as in a mattress.

Whatever you want in chairs. . . from deep, comfortable lounge chairs to striking occasional chairs, you'll find the variety of selection you want in our showroom display. . . in pleasing new decorator fabrics and colors. Come in soon!

If a brown-and-serve sausage is made with extra care...

it shows.

And it shows up in the taste, too. FIRST PRIZE Brown-and-Serve Sausage has the honest taste of really fresh, really lean, primal cuts of pork. And we use real imported spices to season our sausage perfectly. If FIRST PRIZE costs a little more, it's because you're buying meat. Less fryaway. Fresh-tasting, 100% U.S. Government inspected. Just brown and serve.

Youngberg-Fuller Wedding Solemnized

Cheryl Ann Youngberg and Cleo Wyman Fuller Jr. were united in marriage on Saturday, February 17, in Holy Trinity Lutheran Church, Jamestown, N. Y. The double ring service was read by the Rev. Dr. Wilton E. Bergstrand, pastor. Traditional wedding music was provided by organist, Miss Florence M. Sandberg, and soloist, Miss Ingrid Zeldin.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett W. Youngberg of R. D. 3, Forest avenue, Ext., Jamestown, N. Y., and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleo W. Fuller of RD 1, Falconer-Kennedy road, Falconer, N. Y.

Altar decorations included arrangements of white mums, two baskets of gladioli with mums, and lighted tapers in seven-branched candelabra.

Escorted on the arm of her father, the bride appeared in a gown of white peau de sole fashioned with empire bodice, modified scoop neckline edged with pearls and a long lace, long sleeves with cuffs of the lace, and the a-line skirt arranged with a full detachable train. Her crown of seed pearls and crystals secured a two tier veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of white sweet-heart roses with green ivy.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Jean Mikluk in yellow taffeta, feathered headpiece with bustle veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and white streamers.

If the Shoe Fits...

James R. Valone

Foot-saving Education

Why are children's shoes so expensive?

The correct answer to this question amuses some people, angers others, and doesn't help the budget a bit. It might save a pair of feet if Mom can use it to convince Dad that shoe prices are not bad.

The real reason that shoes are expensive is because we have to have TWO of them. When we look at a pair of six dollar shoes we should think of them individually as three dollars each. That is how the manufacturer must look at them when he figures his cost of material and labor.

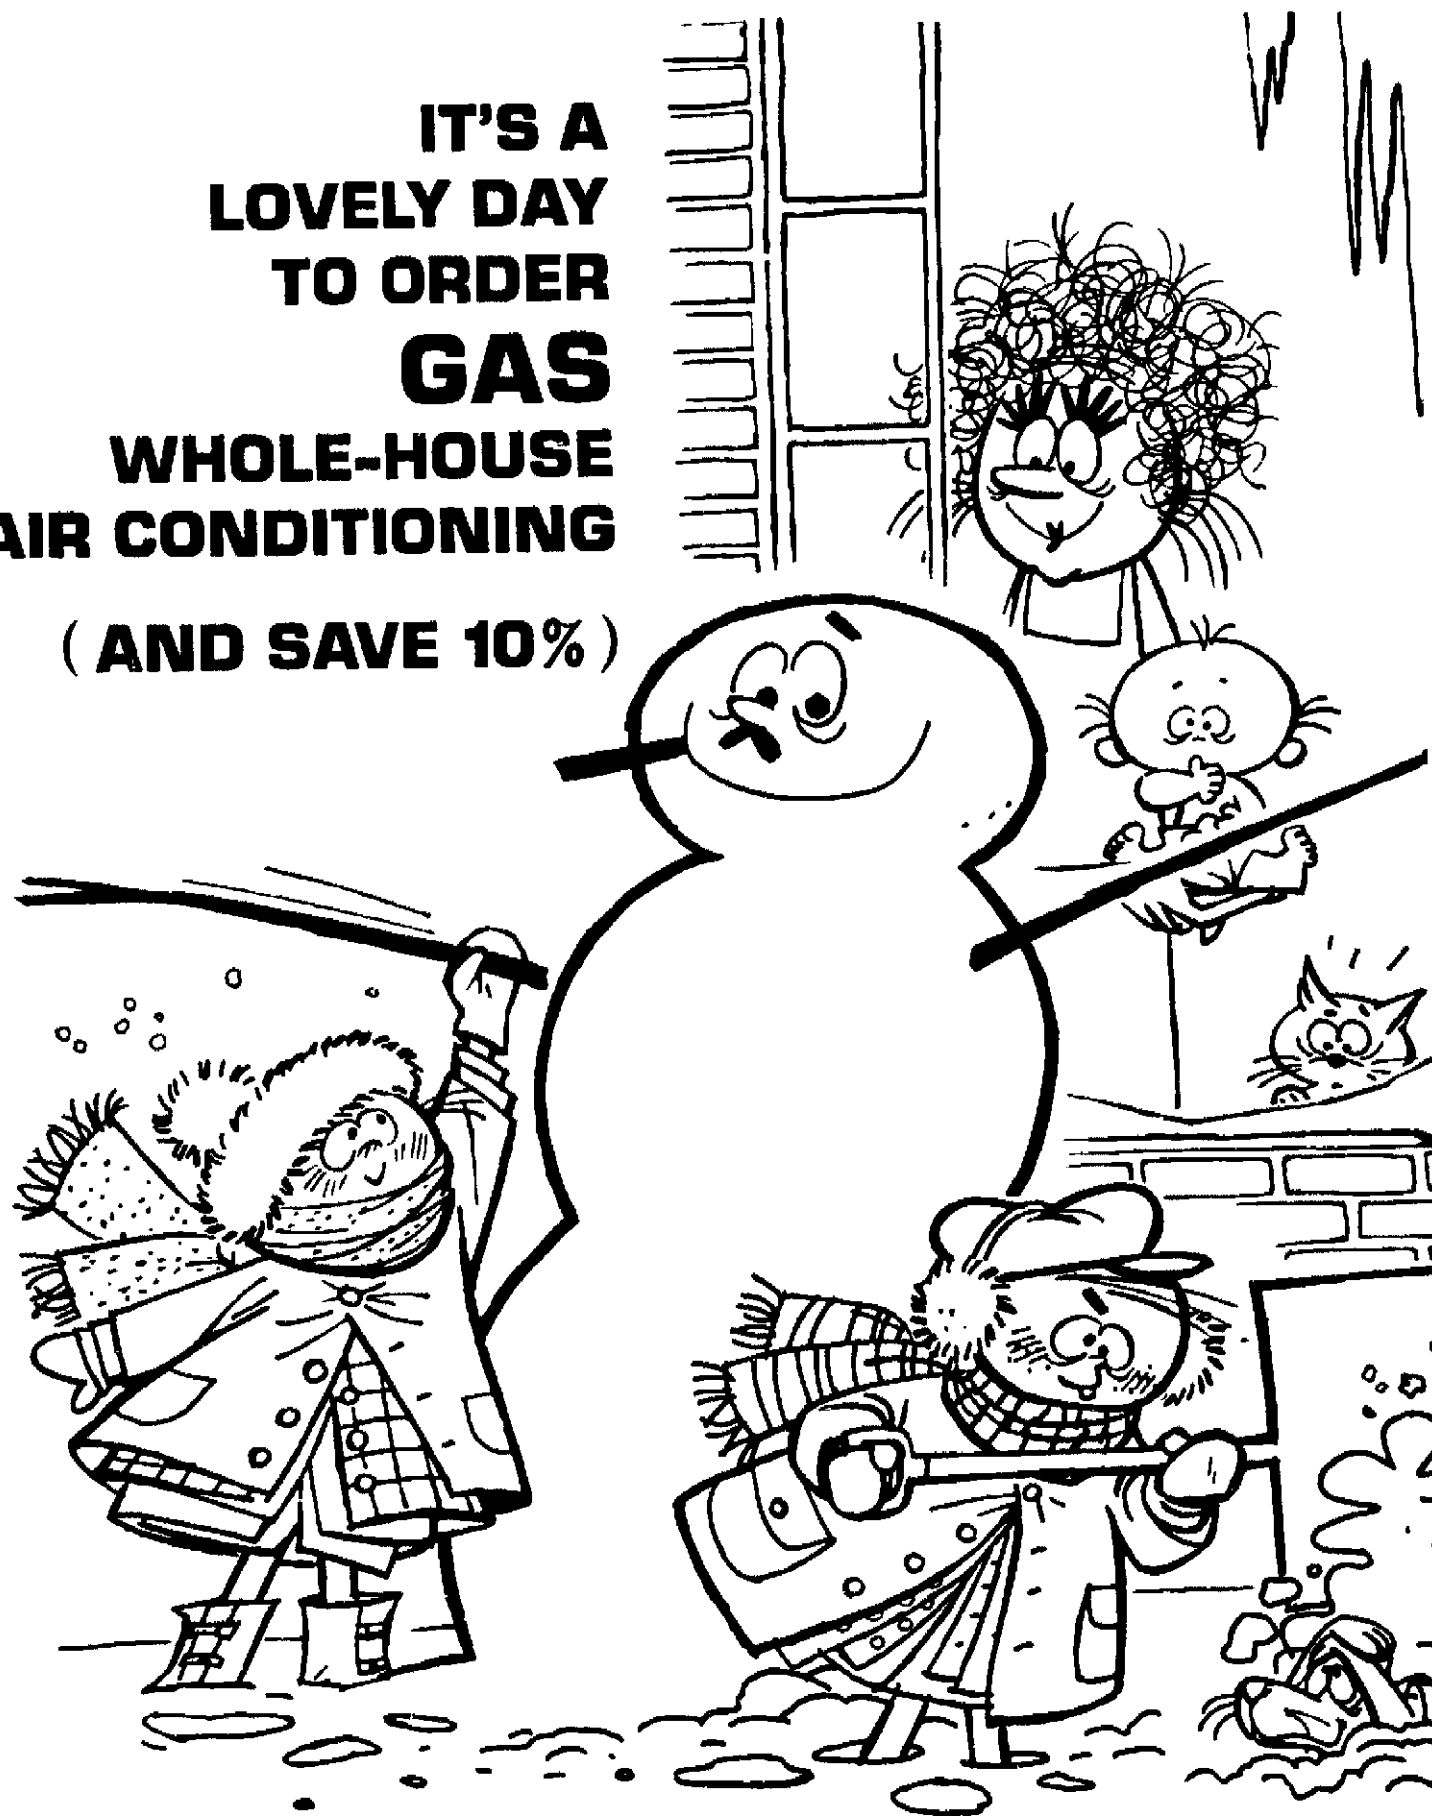

A single shoe at three or three-fifty is a far better value than a hat, a purse, or a necktie at the same price. The shoe must withstand grinding on cement and not blister little feet. It wades through puddles, kicks cans, shinies up trees and comes up smiling with a little polish.

With the exception of glasses, perhaps nothing that we buy for a child can affect his future happiness as much as the footwear that protects the very foundation of bodily health.

1♠ 1♣ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠.
When a highly unfavorable division in diamonds threatened the success of his three no trump contract, South elicited the help of the opposition to generate additional tricks.

West opened the four of spades and South won the trick in dummy with the nine. The ten of diamonds was led and covered in turn by East's king and declarer's ace as West discarded a club.

With the diamonds dividing so unfavorably, South could count only seven sure tricks: three diamonds, two hearts, one spade, and one club. If he crossed over to dummy to take the club finesse, he might develop another trick; however, that would still leave him one short.

There was the further consideration that, if East were to gain the lead, a spade return thru declarer's king-jack would surely bring a quick decision for the defense since West's overall marked him with the missing strength in that suit.

South concluded that, since he could not develop a ninth trick himself, he would turn the initiative over to the opposition. If West's original lead of the four of spades were to be taken at face value, he was marked with at most five spades and, as he ran that suit, discarding might prove highly awkward for his partner.

After cashing the queen of diamonds, South exited with the king of spades. West was in and he proceeded to run his suit. On the third spade, North discarded a diamond. On the next lead all hands shed a diamond. As the last spade was led, dummy discarded a heart and East was also obliged to part with a heart in order to avoid coming down to the lone king of clubs.

South gave up the five of diamonds and all hands were reduced to this six card position:

NORTH

West exited with the ten of clubs, North played the jack, East covered with the king and South won the trick with the ace. The jack of diamonds was led and West had no safe discard. If he shed a club, North would take two club tricks with the jack and four. If West gave up a heart, however, declarer would run three tricks in that suit.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1948.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—You may decide to take up a new undertaking and, in the process, run into some unforeseen problem. In any event, remain calm, unruffled. With a clear head, you can solve it—and handsily.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Don't expect maximum results from minimum effort. This will be a day in which only your best will do. Don't let the frivolous-minded or the chronic time-wasters sway you from your course.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—It may take longer than usual to put across a proposition or a point, but you can still accomplish a great deal and make a favorable impression in the doing. Mercury influences favorable.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—A better-than-ordinary day. Take up the reins and drive straight—with vigor and your innate distinctiveness. A good period for advancing new ideas and solving difficult problems.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—In unusual situations, even if you THINK you know all the answers, keep alert. There could be some unusual angles of which you're unaware, but which must be studied if you'd come out on top.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—Your outlook is a good one but you may be called upon to step up efforts a bit, take on some extra responsibilities. Some extra compensation or expansion indicated.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Don't bypass small details because you think they're unimportant. Untended, they could lead to BIG problems later. In all things, use well-tested procedures and disregard "advice" from the uninformed.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23)—Look to those things you know best and can do ably to attain immediate rewards, but don't give up your dreams of eventually going ahead still farther in new areas.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Your intuition, foresight and reflexes should be at a peak now, but don't let periods of indifference or lethargy offset good influences.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Auspicious influences should spur your best efforts, your incentive. Seek increased benefits by directing your thoughts and actions into profitable channels.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Plenty of opportunities indicated but, to take full advantage of them, you'll have to be on your toes. It's a day when those who are full of ginger and enthusiasm will profit, while those who are indifferent will get nowhere.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—A period in which to make the most of your acumen, clear-headedness and all-around good judgment—even in "little" things. Don't let past disappointments stymie your efforts. Remember, this is a NEW day!

YOU BORN TODAY are extremely ambitious and high-spirited. The failure of an undertaking never dampens your enthusiasm but acts, rather, as an incentive to better your efforts and aim for still higher goals. Your fine intuition, amounting almost to a "sixth sense," tells you when to take important steps and this, combined with your versatility, can lead to great success. You are always helpful, companionable, one of the world's true humanitarians, but you CAN be misled through your sympathies, if you don't use your head. How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

WRINKLES AND FURROWS

The skin is one of the best indicators of chronological age. A 95-year-old woman may be mentally alert, active, and physically sound. There may be little evidence of hardening of the arteries or arthritis, but there is a good possibility that she looks old. This is not always true because the glandular system and personality alter appearances and a youthful complexion runs in certain families.

The earliest signs of aging begin during the teens. The forehead becomes furrowed, followed by a crease between the root of the nose and the angles of the mouth. In another 15 to 20 years the repeated contraction of facial muscles, combined with loss of skin tone, carves out wrinkles galore.

With the passing years, the superficial surface becomes shiny and scaly and feels dry to the touch. The most telltale signs of growing older are crow's-feet radiating from the outer aspect of the eyes. Lines also develop on the back of the neck, dividing the skin into diamond-shaped areas. Flabby skin results in jowls or double chin.

The bones of the face waste away, especially in toothless jaws. This alters the contours of the mouth, particularly when the dentures are out. Meanwhile, pigmented patches (keratoses) are seen, especially over exposed parts of the body. Keratotic lesions should be watched carefully, because some become cancerous.

Sweat gland activity is reduced in oldsters, while the sebaceous glands in the face become overactive. Enlarged pores and blackheads are not uncommon.

Senile skin is more sensitive than that of a baby. It is easily irritated by excessive bathing, harsh soaps or detergents, and friction from clothes made of wool. Women are more sensitive to these changes than are men, but they also have cosmetics to camouflage the defects.

TOMORROW: Cardiac-like Pains.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

WATER AND ASTHMA

A. P. writes: Is it possible that using hot water from the bathtub faucet six times a day for coffee would result in asthma? I am 79 years old with heart disease and diabetes. I do not smoke or drink. Could warm water from the tap be the cause of my asthma?

REPLY

No, in that an allergy to water is most unusual. If the asthma is bothersome, I suggest that you see your physician. He may be able to find the true cause.

ORIGIN OF NOSEBLEEDS

L.D.E. writes: I would like to know why my wife gets nosebleeds.

REPLY

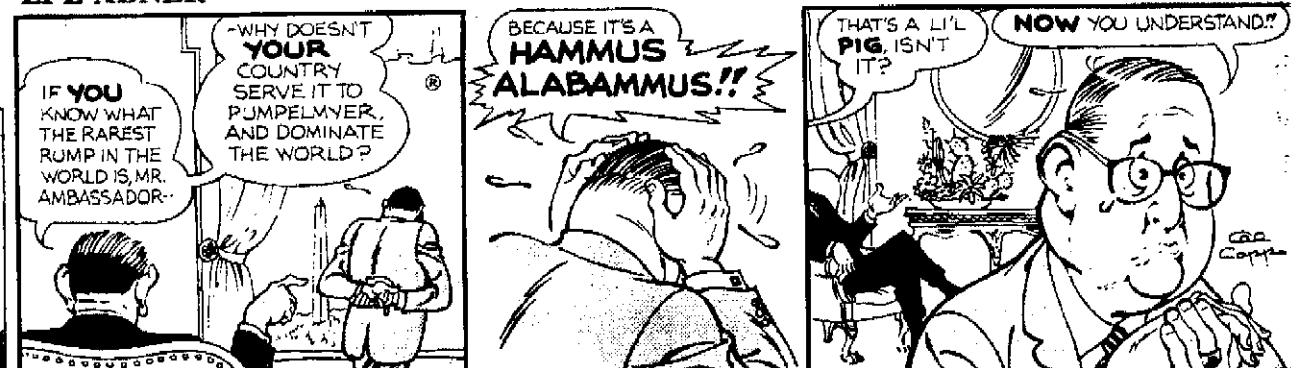

Trauma from direct injury or "picking" the nose is the most common cause. Less common reasons for this disorder are infection, nasal allergy, and hypertension. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on epistaxis.

Svetlana Is Skeptical Of Report

PRINCETON, N. J. (AP) — Svetlana Alliluyeva expressed skepticism Monday of a report that her brother, the oldest son of Joseph Stalin, virtually ordered German guards to execute him.

The U. S. State Department made public Sunday documents disclosing that Yakov Stalin was shot to death in a German prison camp in the spring of 1943.

The documents were captured by the Allied forces in Germany in 1945. The documents, prepared from German records show that Yakov, despondent after a quarrel with fellow captives, touched the wire of an electrically-charged fence and pleaded with a guard to shoot him.

Mrs. Alliluyeva, now living in Princeton, said she had not read the reports of her brother's death and is "not very keen on reading them."

"All this evidence from German officers and other people doesn't mean much to me," she said. "After all, how can I believe any evidence like that in a war prisoner's camp? In the end, the only fact that I have is that he died, that he was shot in a prison camp."

"I have heard so many stories about his death and I absolutely do not know which to believe. I cannot judge every piece of new evidence," she added.

Mrs. Alliluyeva, once Stalin's favorite child, defected to the United States last year and published a book of memoirs of her life in the Kremlin during the reign of the Russian dictator.

The State Department documents claim that Yakov surrendered to German troops near Smolensk on July 18, 1941, and was a prisoner until April 14, 1943, the night of the quarrel with fellow captives in a camp maintained for special prisoners.

The documents include a photograph of what is said to be Yakov's body hanging on the prison's barb wire fence and a report of the shooting from Nazi Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler.

In her book, Mrs. Alliluyeva wrote: "I think Yakov's death is still a mystery."

Proposes Bureau Of Criminal Statistics

HARRISBURG (AP) — Atty. Gen. William C. Sennett proposed Monday establishment of a Bureau of Criminal Statistics in the State Justice Department.

"At best, the gathering of statistics in Pennsylvania on crime, criminals, arrests, convictions, jail populations, rehabilitation, releases and probation and parole — is hopelessly fragmented," Sennett said.

The attorney general testified at a hearing on Uniform Crime Reporting sponsored by the Joint State Government Commission.

"Pennsylvania simply lacks the raw data of statistics which should be utilized to keep our Commonwealth on the proper path in the field of justice in this age of growing population and crime," Sennett testified.

Sennett noted that a similar task force recommended to the General Assembly in 1965 that such a bureau be established in the justice department. The legislature did not act on the proposal.

Time Will Tell, Rockefeller Says

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Monday that "only time will tell" whether his national political standing has been impaired by his handling of the New York City garbage strike.

"I did not at any time consider the national implications," the New York governor said in discussing his strike role at a news conference.

Rockefeller emphasized—as he has many times before—that "I am not a candidate" for the GOP presidential nomination.

"My only concern was to do what I could in the best interests of the people," he asserted. In response to another question, Rockefeller said he did not know whether the unauthorized write-in campaign in his behalf in the New Hampshire primary might split the votes of Michigan Gov. George Romney, to the benefit of Richard M. Nixon.

"The only way we can tell is when we go to the polls," he said.

Rockefeller ended the garbage strike by promising the workers that the state would take over the city's Sanitation Department and give them a slightly larger pay raise than Mayor John V. Lindsay would allow. Lindsay and others criticized him for bowing to union pressure.

New Publication Offered by USDA

Lyle Cathcart, who heads the Warren county office of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service, calls attention to a new publication of that agency called "Sediment-It's Filling Harbors, Lakes and Ditches."

For years, Cathcart reminds, soil erosion has been considered a menace to the welfare of the nation, with emphasis on damage to farmland. What has perhaps been overlooked by many is the damage eroded soil does to everyone everywhere.

The new publication can be obtained at the Soil Conservation Service office in the Court House basement. It points out that more than a half billion cubic yards of eroded soil is dredged each year from streams, navigation channels, estuaries and harbors, at a cost of 40 cents a cubic yard. "Cost of keeping it out of these places through proper conservation practices," says Cathcart, "would be only a fraction of that."

Not only is sediment produced from farmland, he says, it comes from building sites, along roads and stream banks.

According to the new publication, conservation work can reduce sedimentation by as much as 90 percent.

TRW Inc. Merges With Two Firms

CLEVELAND (AP) — TRW Inc. announced Monday it has completed merger transactions with United Carr Inc. and IRC, Inc. J. D. Wright, TRW chairman, said merger terms with United Carr, based in Boston, call for delivery of one share TRW $4.40 serial preference stock II for two shares of United Carr common.

Wright said in exchange for all outstanding IRC stock and for the exercise of IRC stock options assumed by TRW, his company is providing a maximum of 409,885 shares of TRW $4.40 serial preference stock II and 546,514 shares of TRW common.

United Carr, whose 1967 sales and net income were $122.4 million and $6.3 million, respectively, will operate with its present management as a TRW subsidiary, Wright said.

IRC, based in Philadelphia, will operate with its present management as a division of TRW's electronics groups. The company's 1967 sales were $51.1 million, with net income of $5.1 million. It makes electronic equipment.

Wallace Says Optimistically 'We'll Carry Pennsylvania'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — George Wallace optimistically opened the Pennsylvania phase of his third party campaign for the presidency Monday with a prediction that "we will carry Pennsylvania."

"We have support from all kinds of people — the average, typical American steelworkers, truckdrivers, those in the professions," the former Alabama governor told a news conference. "People from all walks of life are supporting us."

Wallace flew here from Alabama to speak at a Wallace-for-president rally Monday night.

His Pennsylvania campaigners said earlier in the day they have 6,000 to 7,000 of the necessary 10,552 signatures to put his name on the November ballot.

Newsman asked Wallace to comment on a remark by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., that Wallace is a menace to the major political parties, Alabama and the United States.

"I don't think any individual can be a menace," Wallace replied. "I think the people who are supporting me, because of their numbers, are a menace to both parties, though."

Under questioning, Wallace defended what he said is his right to have Alabama state policemen with him on the campaign trail.

"Under Alabama law," he said, "they're supposed to protect the governor's family, and I'm a member of the governor's family. I'm the first man of Alabama."

Wallace denied being a segre-

Appears in Harper's

Al Loranger and his firm are putting Warren on the map these days in more and more publications.

The latest is Harper's Magazine. A two-page color ad in the March issue lets people know that the local firm is helping to build computers.

The same ad has informed countless millions who read other publications that the small Warren firm plays a big part in industry.

gationist. "I'm not advocating segregation in anything," he said. "But I am in favor of private businessmen operating their businesses without some bureaucrat from Washington telling them what to do." As for integrated schools, he said he believes each state should have the right to determine for itself the kind of school system it wants.

Wallace renewed his attack on the U.S. Supreme Court, describing the court as "another group of pseudo intellectuals." He defined a pseudo intellectual as a person who "doesn't have much wisdom — but he doesn't have the wisdom."

Wallace was asked what he would do to end the war in Vietnam if he were president.

"There's no simple solution," he said. "It's frustrating and exasperating to those in government. But we cannot carry the entire burden of defending against Communism ourselves."

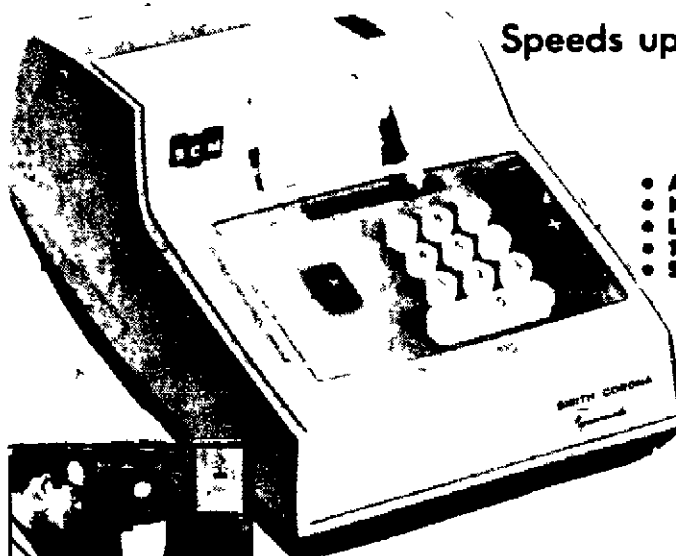

He said one thing he would do would be to talk to the countries of Western Europe and tell them: "You're gonna go with us, and if you don't you're going to start paying us back what you owe us."
